one of the best rules yet evolved for the game of collegiate water polo has been suggested by Frank Sullivan, swimming coach at Princeton. Sullivan believes that by ordering the suspension, without substitution of any player guilty of three "rough work" fouls, objectionable tactics can be eliminated altogether. He points out that referees are always averse to expelling players, even for flagrant offences, because it cripples a team hopelessly, and those violently inclined, knowing this, take advantage. On the other hand, he says, if the chief official is compelled by rule to put out the three-time offender, he will have no alternative, and the men will soon learn to check their aggressiveness, rather, than awhoult their colleges now washington's Birthday. will soon learn to check their aggressiveness rather than submit their teams to a penalty that practically means defeat.
